

EDDINGTON MAN KILLED WHEN STRUCK BY TRUCK ON OLD ROUTE 13, SOUTH OF MILL ST.; PHILA. MAN IS DRIVER

Richard Clark, Eddington, Pronounced Dead on Arrival at Harriman Hospital — Skull Fractured — Driver Released Under $1,000 Bail.

An Eddington man was fatally injured early last evening while crossing Old Route 13, south of Mill street. It was the first fatal accident in Bristol due to motor vehicles within three years.

The victim, Richard Clark, aged about 65, was crossing Old Route 13 near the Kenray Sign paint shop when he was struck by a truck of John J. Felin Co., Inc., of Philadelphia. The truck driver was John Zobel, 59, 6226 N. Howard street, Philadelphia.

The accident occurred at about 5:40 and Clark taken to the Harriman Hospital by the Bucks County Rescue Squad, was pronounced dead upon arrival. He had a fractured skull, according to the physician. He was terribly bruised about the head and face.

Cards in Clark's pockets identified him and gave his residence as "Lower Middle District" in Bensalem Township. The card was a certificate of registration dated August 3, 1944.

Bristol police officers Faragalli and Chief Linford J. Jones were summoned as soon as it was learned that it was a fatal accident.

Zobel told Chief Jones that he was driving about 25 miles per hour and did not see the man until upon him when his attention was attracted to a dark object. He said that Zobel was crossing the highway from south to north when he was struck, near the middle of the road-way. Clark was struck by the left front side of the truck and apparently tossed up on top of the hood and then down upon the concrete roadway.

Police said that some witnesses informed them that Clark was crossing the roadway, going from north to the south side.

Three Men in Car Hurt When Machine Overturns

EDDINGTON, Jan. 10—Three men had a narrow escape from death or serious injury early this morning when the car in which they were riding turned over on route 13 just opposite the St. Francis School, here. The three men were slightly injured.

Patrick Hayworth, Croydon, owner and driver of the car, sustained lacerations of the face; Eugene Howlett, a passenger sustained abrasions of the left hip, leg, and ankle and twisted back; John Egan, Eddington, had abrasions, also a wrenched back. The former two were treated at Harriman Hospital, Bristol, then returned home. Bucks County Rescue Squad transported the patients.

The trio were travelling east on Bristol Pike at about 8:30 this morning, when the car shot across the highway, struck a pole and hurtled through the fence onto the grounds of St. Francis Vocational school where it overturned.

The County Of The Founder

(By "The Stroller")

Bucks Countians know that their county is well known throughout the United States, but occasionally that is "driven home" with great force. Then their chests are puffed out prouder than ever.

Three men, from Bensalem township and Bristol borough, recently engaged in a deer hunting trip in northern New York State. As they sat at breakfast early one day in a small-town restaurant in that section, an elderly man seated on a stool next to them was informed during the conversation that the trio was from Pennsylvania. "From Bucks County?" queried the elderly clerk. "Well, it so happens that we are," replied one of the hunters. "Well, Bucks County and Pennsylvania are the same thing," said the old fellow as he readily "discarded" the other 66 counties in this state.

Which reminds us of an Edgely woman who with her family temporarily took up residence elsewhere. In becoming acquainted with a woman in a neighboring apartment the Edgelyite remarked that she was from Bucks County. "What! You came away from Bucks County? Why, that's the county to which people go." The Edgelyite was quick to reply that her residence out of Bucks County was but temporary.

STAMP SPECULATION NEW 'GAMBLING' CRAZE

Stamp Sales Reach A New Peak in 1947; Over 3 1/2 Million Dollars

By John Druckenbrod
(L. N. S. Staff Correspondent)

WASHINGTON, Jan. 10—(INS)—A Post Office Department official declared today that stamp speculation has become the nation's newest "gambling" craze.

James Bell, head of the Department's Philatelic Agency for Stamp Collectors, reported that the business of investing in commemorative postage stamps has reached an all-time high.

Bell released figures showing that stamp sales of his agency reached a new peak in 1947 of more than three and one-half million dollars, commenting:

"A large part of this figure is accounted for by sales to 'accumulators'—the polite name applied to speculators by those who collect stamps merely for the pleasure and hobby."

Bell's Philatelic Agency, located in Washington, was established in 1922 as a special service to stamp collectors, providing them with every stamp available in unlimited quantities.

Revenues of the Agency do not include first-day sales at post offices where new issues are first offered to the public nor revenue derived later from the sale of stamps to philatelists at local post offices.

A SUMMARY OF THE NEWS

The regional director of the War Assets Administration placed an embargo yesterday on all undelivered consignments of surplus explosives. This action followed police seizure of three tractor-trailers with 69 tons of explosives and disclosure of an apparent plan to ship to Palestine 199 tons of explosives bought from the WAA. A consignment of 7 tons of this purchase was believed to be on the high seas bound for Palestine.

In Palestine an organized Arab force of about 600 men that crossed the frontier from Syria attacked two Jewish settlements. British forces, aided by an RAF fighter unit, helped to repel the assault. However, the Arabs were reported concentrating their forces anew near the frontier.

The United States Consulate General in Jerusalem has raised with the Palestine Government the question of using a detachment of marines or other "guards" from the United States to protect the consulate. The State Department, in making this disclosure, said no decision had been reached.

Secretary General Lie told the United Nations Palestine Commission that it could count on the backing of the Security Council in attempting to carry out the General Assembly's resolution on the partition of Palestine. The Little Assembly adopted a United States resolution asking members of the United Nations to submit proposals for modification of the veto power of the five major countries by March 15th.

The United States also figured in two other developments in the Middle East situation. The Navy Department announced that four large, modern United States submarines were being transferred to Turkey. Greece, too, was in line for new aid from Washington. An announcement in Athens said the United States Mediterranean Fleet was holding training exercises off southwestern Greece.

Indian troops in Kashmir launched an offensive against the raiders who have been harassing that state. The Kashmir issue is expected to be considered at a meeting of the Prime Ministers of India and Pakistan tomorrow.

Labor demonstrations and a five-hour work stoppage in Essen gave rise to a belief that the Communists had begun their expected attack on Germany's part in the Marshall Plan for European reconstruction.

TAFT AND TRUMAN

For the third time in a row, Senator Taft has successfully "topped" President Truman.

Perhaps the word "top" ought to be explained. It has come to have a number of meanings bordering on slang. On the stage, one actor "tops" another when he produces a second and better gag-line for a joke which has just been told. In newspaper work, a statement by one person is often said to be "topped" when a reply to it, or some other development, forces a new head and lead to be written, and the original story subordinated.

It is in these senses that the President has been topped by the Republican leader in the Senate. And the experience it may be added, is a somewhat new one for Republicans to enjoy. For many years, the New Dealers were able to "top" the Republican spokesmen consistently. Many important Republican attacks on New Deal policy were simply kept from public attention by adroit press agents who "buried" them under well-timed and more sensational propaganda.

The first time a New Deal President was successfully topped was last Summer during the Taft-Hartley fight in Congress. President Truman vetoed the bill, and went to the radio with a vigorous criticism of it. Hardly was he off the air when Senator Taft, as co-sponsor of the bill, was sufficiently persuasive to an able and convincing counter-attack that was sufficient to persuade the Senate to pass the bill.

Senator Taft took the air again to reply to President Truman a few hours after the latter had announced by radio his reasons for calling the fall's special session of Congress. The President outlined the "stop-gap" version of the Marshall Plan, as had been expected, but also demanded that price and rationing controls be re-established as a means (he said) of controlling inflation.

This second assignment for Congress was sprung as a surprise. Nevertheless, Senator Taft was prompt to present his counter-arguments, and did so in such persuasive and convincing fashion that the special session gave not an inch in the direction of re-establishing OPA.

On last Thursday night Senator Taft "took apart" the President's State-of-the-Union Message in masterful fashion. This time he was not quite so quick on the trigger—he waited more than a full day before making his reply. This was probably due, not to any inability to answer sooner, but to a desire to go through the routine of consulting his somewhat temperamental associates in the Senate before he took to the air.

In both of the earlier instances, there was some criticism of Senator Taft for not making such consultations. Brother Senators can be, at times, more than a little sensitive—especially in a Presidential year. The accusation was made that Senator Taft, though nominally speaking for the Republican Party, was actually speaking only for himself, and was using the situation as a springboard to build up his own importance.

Since the Republican Party would appear to be completely lost unless some sense of unity can be preserved on its front line, which at the moment is Congress, the advantages of keeping everyone feeling he is "on the team" are far greater than the trifling loss of time in delaying official replies to the President for a few hours.

"Much mail is going astray," he stated. "During the past week about 100 letters addressed to Pennel have found their way to this office (South Langhorne) after traveling many days or weeks. One was postmarked December 4. It had been traveling 29 days. Possibly some of them had travelled much longer."

Pilotless Aircraft And Missiles Are Discussed

The Bristol Exchange Club held its first meeting of the new year in the Elks home, Radcliffe and Walnut streets, on Thursday evening, and installed newly-elected officers for 1948, who are as follows: David Hertzler, president; Edward Fleming, vice-president; Carl Foell, secretary; and Thomas Strickler, treasurer.

President Hertzler, who presided at the general meeting, called on Thomas Strickler who introduced the speaker of the evening, Lt. Comdr. A. M. Pichinto of the Naval Air Development Station at Johnsville. His subject was "Pilotless aircraft and missiles as developed by the U. S. Naval authorities during and since the last war." He illustrated by "movies" the actual testing of the aircraft. Lt. Comdr. Pichinto stressed the importance of the youth of today in their interest in model aircraft, and stated that a great many expert engineers in highly-specialized jobs have had their beginning at an early age by studying small gasoline propelled models, thus giving them a well-balanced background for the development of the larger craft.

THE GREAT GAME OF POLITICS

By FRANK R. KENT

Two Years Ago—And Now

Washington, Jan. 10. THE public memory is notoriously short but it ought not to require too much effort for the averagely informed citizen to recall the Fulton (Mo.) speech made on March 6, 1946, by Mr. Winston Churchill. In the interests of world peace, for mutual protection, to strengthen the United Nations and as a measure of healthy economy, he suggested a closer peacetime partnership between the English-speaking nations, the joint use of British and American naval and airbases, continued co-operative consultation of the joint chiefs of staff.

FOR this entirely sensible and unsensational proposal Mr. Churchill found himself denounced all over the country. President Truman, who had introduced him, hurriedly disassociated himself from the speech, declaring he had no idea what was in it. Senators Pepper, Kilgore and Taylor regarded it as "shocking." Senator George asserted that to "dovetail" the armed forces of the two nations would weaken the United Nations. Senator Hall, of Minnesota, declared such an alliance would be interpreted by Russia as "unfriendly." By others Mr. Churchill was called an "incurable imperialist," and, of course, a "warmonger."

CONSIDERS AMERICAN HISTORICAL ANTIQUES

Samuel Laidacker, Collector and Dealer, Speaks to Club Women

MacARTHUR, SOLOIST

American historical antiques were considered in some detail yesterday afternoon when Samuel Laidacker, of Bristol township, addressed members of the "Travel Club" at their bi-weekly meeting.

Reversing the usual procedure, and asking for questions before starting his presentation, Mr. Laidacker then gave answers in with other information given the club women.

A collector and dealer in antiques for many years, and publisher of "The American Antique Collector," he told of first securing some of his interest in antiques from his father, a collector before him.

How establishment of a "mail order antique business" several years ago aided him in many ways, was brought out, one helpful thing being his contact with others seeking specific items, and the information he gleaned from contacts.

The women were reminded by the guest that "A person with a hobby or some serious interest lives seven years longer than normal expectancy. Also a busy mind needs an avocation."

Among the items displayed by the speaker were a cup plate of colorless glass, bearing the impression of an eagle; a green whiskey bottle (circa 1850), a plate bearing the same scene as an engraving which was also displayed in this instance a popular resort spring in Virginia. In pointing out the fact that the engraving and scene on the plate were the same, Mr. Laidacker told how children playing at a spot in England where discarded prints, still wet, were piled, accidentally

JETS AROUND THE POLE

Airmen and military tacticians keep talking about the problems involved in a war in the air across the top of the world. Ground forces already have conducted maneuvers in the Arctic, the Navy has sent ships into berg-clogged waters, and the Air Force has been operating long-range patrol craft and bombers in those areas.

In view of the current international situation, and as a result of the opening of the polar regions to flight operations, these maneuvers, and the discussions that attend them, are to be expected. It is the job of the armed services to be prepared for any eventuality, however remote, and the best way to prepare is to do it on the scene.

Just how actively the Air Force is pursuing its part of the task is shown in the report that an entire jet fighter squadron has been detailed to Alaska for the "first mass tactical operation" of these high speed warplanes in the Arctic area.

The individual and unit performance of this squadron—probably about 24 planes—should give useful information on their capabilities under conditions of extreme cold, and yield data that will assist in the design and construction of future jet planes.

MAKE 'EM BETTER

The cigar industry needs a little advice, judging from the recent year-end report released by the Cigar Manufacturers Association.

The report pointed out that the cigar industry in 1947 enjoyed its second best peacetime year since 1930 in volume, but in terms of total dollar value it fared considerably worse than in 1946, and then added:

"It will be undesirable for cigar manufacturers to increase the prices of their products. Their principal aims in 1948 must be to achieve a reduction in excise taxes, to improve the efficiency of their operations, and to develop a larger cigar-smoking public."

The principal aim of the cigar industry should be the improvement of cigars. Regardless of how good cigars may be at present, and no matter how much people enjoy their favorite brand, it should be the aim of the cigar manufacturers to make better ones.

To accomplish this may entail the expenditure of a great deal of money in research in tobacco growing, but there is no good reason why continuing efforts should not be made to improve the flavor of tobacco and cigars. If the development of hybrid corn resulted in increasing the production of corn tremendously, who knows how much could be done for the flavor of tobacco by scientific means?

viously doesn't intend to be a can-

A Summary of The News

Secretary Marshall was criticized for using "propaganda methods" by Senator George, who condemned the secretary's "all or nothing" testimony before the Senate Foreign Interrelations Committee. Senator Vandenburg charged that the State Department had failed to present an administrative system for the European aid program in which the public could have confidence.

Speaker Martin predicted that Congress would pass a tax bill that would free 6,000,000 persons from payments. He characterized President Truman's tax proposals as "a political device" and said Congress could pass its tax measure over a Presidential veto.

Former Governor Stassen told a Senate investigating committee that about eleven "administration insiders" had gained $1,000,000 as a result of speculation on the commodity markets. He accused Mr. Truman of being "guilty of reprehensible conduct" for permitting the trading.

A slate of candidates for delegates to the Republican National Convention pledged to support General Eisenhower will be entered in the

Taft and Truman

The answer which Senator Taft made speaks for itself. He blasted the President's message as a "Santa Claus" program, "with a rich present for every special group in the United States." He accused the President of getting into a promising contest with Henry Wallace, trying to win radical votes.

As to the cost of the President's program, Senator Taft estimated that "we would spend almost at once ten billion dollars a year more than we are now spending; with later increases to come"—all this, of course, on top of the proposed forty billion dollar budget and the many billions of the proposed Marshall Plan.

Spending on this basis, Senator Taft pointed out, would call for a 50 per cent increase in taxes—and this would have to fall on the lower brackets, since the higher-income groups already are paying up to 80 per cent and therefore it is physically impossible to increase their taxes 50 per cent.

"So in one way or another," the Senator continued, "the sixty million workers in this country are going to pay those additional taxes, either directly or through further increases in prices. In short, the President is simply following the old New Deal principle of promising the people something for nothing. . . . the features of the President's program . . . add up to national bankruptcy."

Summing up his case against the Truman suggestions, Senator Taft declared:

"The ten-year Truman plan would leave about as much freedom in this country as Stalin's five-year plan has left in Russia. Not only do control measures destroy freedom but they don't get the results."

The Great Game of Politics

PARTICULARLY was he flayed by the "liberal" columnists and commentators who at that time all held that the way to gain Russian cooperation and atomic energy control and everything else was through an appeal to reason and by being patient, cordial, sympathetic and understanding—an idea that seems abandoned now by nearly everyone except Mr. Henry Wallace and his friends. In his own country, the aged George Bernard Shaw vehemently and ridiculously asserted that the "Churchill plan" would mean immediate "war with Russia."

IN VIEW of all this, it is interesting to note that to a considerable degree the peacetime partnership between this country and its own advocate, by Mr. Churchill, already has come about, and the rest of it, including the dovetailing of our armed forces and the "co-operative consultation of the joint chiefs of staff," is being passionately urged by some of the very columnists and commentators who were so horrified at the Churchill suggestion two years ago. These now scream for full working partnership as vital to us and to the world. As a minimum, they insist, the organization of a combined Anglo-American political and economic staff is plainly essential. Nor is it denied that political and economic cooperation is silly if it does not include military understanding and co-operation.

THE Soviet representatives, Mr.
Molotov and Mr. Gromyko, long ago made those arguments, and weakened the United Nations, and "understanding the moods" of the Russians seem extremely silly. And no one now suggests that it would be calamitous for the Russians to "interpret" anything we do as unfriendly, because they not only consistently put the worst possible interpretation on everything we do or say but have called us every unfriendly name they can think of.
And still are. Mr. Churchill is not the kind of man to say "I told you so," but he has every right to, and it does seem that the once critical gentlemen who now have adopted his view might feel a little apologetic and more than a little foolish.

THE following is a quotation—"The 'special arrangement' for peacetime military co-operation which Mr. Churchill proposes for the English-speaking nations is simple, logical and practical. Inevitable allies in war, and inevitably allies in peace, we must be able to prevent war, and, our great common desire for peace makes this sort of 'special arrangement' wholly natural and intelligent. It is the way to make our combined weight within the United Nations more potent. It will make it more difficult to bluff us or bully us. And it has several other obvious advantages, such as increased effectiveness in national defense at a decreased cost. It would strengthen rather than weaken the United Nations, and it involves no hostility to Russia, with whom all the English-speaking nations want to be friends. However, it would reduce the ability of Russia to make a monkey of us and would make the world more secure against war."

THOSE words appeared in this column on March 7, 1946, the day after the Churchill speech. They seem to apply even more forcefully to the situation as it exists today than they did to the situation nearly two years ago. The kind of opposition the Churchill proposal had then does not exist now. The unfavorable arguments then made would be absurd now. Actually, some who made them in 1946 have so changed their minds that they now want to go further in the partnership than was then proposed. It

18th Century Life in The Town of Williamsburg Shown

DOYLESTOWN, Jan. 10 — "18th Century Life in Williamsburg," a film in color, was viewed by members of Village Improvement Association on Wednesday in the Bucks County Historical Society building.

A day in the life of a family in Williamsburg touched on many sides of colonial living, especially in the cook house, where old-fashioned preparation of meals in the fireplace was particularly interesting to housewives recently deprived by the sleet storm of their modern conveniences.

During the business meeting the general treasurer reported a balance of $351.33, and the hospital treasurer reported that income during December was $6768.53 and expenses amounted to $9243.99. Donations from Thanksgiving services amounted to $183.38 and donations totaling $400 were received for a new anesthesia machine which has been installed. The V. I. A. is the sponsoring organization for the hospital.

Mrs. Charles H. Shive reported that 317 patients were treated during the month. There were 45 deliveries, 44 operations and 171 X-rays. She announced that the hospital committee has purchased a new coagulation machine for use in connection with operations.

The members of the V. I. A. were invited to attend the meeting of the Junior Women's Club in the Moose home on January 26th.

Today's Quiet Moment

By the Rev. H. H. Heavener
Pastor
Corwells Methodist Church

Dear Father, as the sailors of the sea have conquered by that which has stood in the days of the patriarchs, the eternal star, may we conquer 1948 through Him who will stand in that last day. The Lord who gave Himself a ransom for all and by his death and resurrection defeated all that would defeat us. We covet this kind of power for the world—power which wins eternally through Thee. In Christ's name. Amen.

18th Century Life in The Town of Williamsburg Shown

DOYLESTOWN, Jan. 10 — "18th Century Life in Williamsburg," a film in color, was viewed by members of Village Improvement Association on Wednesday in the Bucks County Historical Society building.

A day in the life of a family in Williamsburg touched on many sides of colonial living, especially in the cook house, where old-fashioned preparation of meals in the fireplace was particularly interesting to housewives recently deprived by the sleet storm of their modern conveniences.

During the business meeting the general treasurer reported a balance of $351.33, and the hospital treasurer reported that income during December was $6768.53 and expenses amounted to $9243.99. Donations from Thanksgiving services amounted to $183.38 and donations totaling $400 were received for a new anesthesia machine which has been installed. The V. I. A. is the sponsoring organization for the hospital.

Mrs. Charles H. Shive reported that 317 patients were treated during the month. There were 45 deliveries, 44 operations and 171 X-rays. She announced that the hospital committee has purchased a new coagulation machine for use in connection with operations.

The members of the V. I. A. were invited to attend the meeting of the Junior Women's Club in the Moose home on January 26th.

Today's Quiet Moment

By the Rev. H. H. Heavener
Pastor
Corwells Methodist Church

Dear Father, as the sailors of the sea have conquered by that which has stood in the days of the patriarchs, the eternal star, may we conquer 1948 through Him who will stand in that last day. The Lord who gave Himself a ransom for all and by his death and resurrection defeated all that would defeat us. We covet this kind of power for the world—power which wins eternally through Thee. In Christ's name. Amen.

BRISTOL HIGH SCORES WIN OVER BURLINGTON TEAM

With Jimmy Sottile and Johnny Pindar starring, the Bristol High basketball team ran roughshod over a meek Burlington High quintet last night on the local court. The Bunnies scored 54 points while holding the Jersey team to 35.

The tilt was quite a contrast to the previous meeting of the two teams which also went to Bristol, 35-33. Last night, Burlington sought revenge but an alert Bristol team subdued them with ease.

Not only did Sottile and Pindar make 29 points between them but this pair seemed to have control of both backboards during the entire contest, and also blocked many of the Blue Devils' attempts at field goals.

Bill Hancock again led the Burs in scoring with thirteen points but Tommy Green proved a good shot from the foul line by sinking in 7 out of 16 tries.

Only in the first half of the game did the fans feel as if the meeting was going to be like the last one. The lead here changed several times with Bristol scoring twice near the finish of the half to take a 23-16 lead.

It was Green who put the visitors ahead by scoring the first point, a foul. Hancock scored three points on a fielder and free shots and the Blue Devil went ahead, 4-0. Pindar converted a foul and took a pass from Sottile to make the count, 4-3, and Bristol went into the foul on Sottile's goal. When Morrell fouled Hancock, he sunk it to deadlock the count, 5-5, but Sottile got the point back for Bristol. Pindar dribbled to the goal for a score but Bailton retaliated for Burlington. On a pass from DeLong, Pindar scored and Bristol was in front, 10-7 which Sottile made 11-7 on a foul. Hancock and Green scored twin-pointers in quick succession to even the count, 11-11, at the quarter.

Jim Marshall scored for the Bunnies at the start of the second quarter but a goal by Toronto and back-handed shot by Green put Burlington ahead, 15-13. Marshall again stepped into the spotlight with a Bristol score to tie the count. Sottile scored a long shot and then picked the ball off the floor to score again to put Bristol ahead, 19-15. Bailton converted a foul but Bielecki and Morrell countered with field goals and Bristol had a half-time edge of 23-16.

The third quarter appeared to be a foul shooting contest as four fouls were made early in the period. But Pindar brought the crowd to its feet by leaping up and catching Sottile's high pass and sinking it into the net for a goal. Burlington continued to make fouls but Bristol was dropping in fielders and at the end of the quarter, the score was: Bristol, 26; Burlington, 27.

The Bunnies' scoring machine stepped into faster time in the last period and ran their total to 54 points while Burlington scored but 8 points in the last eight minutes of play.

Stamp Speculation New 'Gambling' Craze

These figures were not immediately available but Bell said that revenues from these sources coupled with the Agency's receipts "must figure close to seven million dollars for 1947."

He added: "Our Agency's volume of business last year is particularly significant when compared with the 1944 total of around two million dollars. In 1947 sales increased to nearly double the 1944 total due in large measure to the trend of buying stamps as an investment.

"People are realizing more and more each year that there is good money in buying stamps and reselling them when they become scarce in the traders' market."

As an example of the profits possible, Bell cited present premium prices on a series of stamps issued in 1943 bearing flags of the Allied countries. There were 13 stamps in the series.

Philatly experts say the stamps, which originally sold for five cents each, $2.50 for a sheet of fifty stamps and $32.50 for a complete set of 13 sheets, are bringing $50 and more a set today.

Bell said that this incident alone has attracted hundreds of additional collectors and "accumulators."

Hobbyists also report that a marked increase in the value of the "Famous Americans" series of 1940, which memorialized 35 noted educators, poets, authors, inventors, scientists, composers and artists, brought many more converts.

With Jimmy Sottile and Johnny Pindar starring, the Bristol High basketball team ran roughshod over a meek Burlington High quintet last night on the local court. The Bunsies scored 54 points while holding the Jersey team to 35.

The tilt was quite a contrast to the previous meeting of the two teams, which came also went to Bristol, 35-33. Last night, Burlington sought revenge but an alert Bristol team subdued them with ease.

Not only did Sottile and Pindar make 39 points between them but this pair seemed to have control of both backboards during the entire contest, and also blocked many of the Blue Devils' attempts at field goals.

Bill Hancock again led the Bunsies in scoring with thirteen points but Tommy Green proved a good shot from the foul line by sinking in 7 out of 10 tries.

Only in the first half of the game did the fans feel as if the meeting was going to be like the last one. The lead here changed several times with Bristol scoring twice near the finish of the half to take a 23-16 lead.

It was Green who put the visitors ahead by scoring the first point, a foul. Hancock scored three points on a fielder and free shots and the Blue Devil went ahead, 4-0. Pindar converted a foul and took a pass from Sottile to make the count, 4-3, and Bristol went into the lead on Sottile's goal. When Morrell fouled Hancock, he sunk it to deadlock the count, 5-5, but Sottile got the point back for Bristol. Pindar dribbled to the goal for a score but Ballton retaliated for Burlington. On a pass from DeLong, Pindar scored and Bristol was in front, 10-7 which Sottile made 11-7 on a foul. Hancock and Green scored twin-pointers in quick succession to even the count, 11-11, at the quarter.

Jim Marshall scored for the Bunsies at the start of the second quarter but a goal by Toronto and back-handed shot by Green put Burlington ahead, 15-13. Marshall again stepped into the spotlight with a Bristol score to tie the count. Sottile scored a long shot and then picked the ball off the floor to score again to put Bristol ahead, 19-15. Ballton converted a foul but Bielecki and Morrell countered with field goals and Bristol had a half-time edge of 23-16.

The third quarter appeared to be a foul shooting contest as four fouls were made early in the period. But Pindar brought the crowd to its feet by leaping up and catching Sottile's high pass and sinking it into the net for a goal. Burlington continued to make fouls but Bristol was dropping in fielders and at the end of the quarter, the score was: Bristol, 36; Burlington, 27.

The Bunsies' scoring machine stepped into faster time in the last period and ran their total to 54 points while Burlington scored but 8 points in the last eight minutes of play.
